The Ancient Monuments and Archaeological Areas Act 1979

Amended entry in the schedule of monuments

Historic Environment Scotland in exercise of the powers conferred on it by section 1(1) of the Ancient Monuments and Archaeological Areas Act 1979 hereby amends the entry in the statutory schedule of monuments as set out below.

The monument known as Lamb Knowe, bank barrow and Roman camp 480m NNW of Raeburnfoot comprises the remains of a Neolithic bank barrow dating probably from the late 3rd to 2nd millennium BC, and a Roman temporary camp dating probably from the late 1st century AD. The bank barrow runs NNE-SSW through the Roman camp. Both the barrow and the camp defences survive as slight upstanding earthworks and are also visible on oblique aerial photographs. The monument is located on the SSW flank of Lamb Knowe, a ridge lying between the Rae and Moodlaw burns, which descends towards the River White Esk; the barrow runs down the ridge from around 250m to 210m OD.

The scheduled area is irregular on plan, to include the remains described above and an area around them within which evidence relating to the monument's construction, use and abandonment is expected to survive. The scheduling excludes the above-ground elements of all post-and-wire fences.

The monument, which lies in the Parish of Eskdalemuir and the County of Dumfries as shown in red on the plan annexed and executed as relative hereto [redacted].

This entry supersedes the Entry in the Schedule of Monuments for the monument known then as Lamb Knowe, bank barrow 300m NW to 800m N of Raeburnfoot as referred to in the Entry in the Schedule of Monuments by the Secretary of State for Scotland in respect of the monument dated 9 January 1998 and recorded in the General Register of Sasines for the County of Dumfries on 24 June 1998.
