The monument known as Pennygown, chapel, cross-shaft and graveyard, comprises the upstanding remains of a medieval chapel and a cross-shaft and graveyard. The monument is situated NE of Pennygown around 120m S of the Sound of Mull shoreline and immediately N of the A849 road at about 10m OD. The ruined chapel is sited within the northern part of the graveyard. It is constructed of rubble masonry with freestone dressings. Within the chapel, erected on a modern base, is the lower part of a cross-shaft standing 1.33m above ground. The graveyard, which is no longer in use, is defined by walls forming a rectilinear enclosure. Within the graveyard are two 17th-century slabs, each 2m in length, bearing full-length effigies of a man and woman. The area to be scheduled comprises the remains of the chapel, cross-shaft and grave slabs as described and an area around them within which related material is likely to survive. It is rectilinear and bounded on the north, south and east by the walls of the graveyard. The NW side measures 26m, the NNW side 12m, the NE side 24m, the SE side 35m and the SW side measures 32.5m. The above-ground elements of the graveyard boundary wall and the stone steps on the northern side are excluded from the scheduling. The monument, which lies in the Parish of Torosay and the County of Argyll as shown outlined in red on the Plan annexed and executed as relative hereto and
