ENTRY IN THE SCHEDULE OF MONUMENTS

The monument known as Camp Hill, fort, 175m WSW of Bailliehill comprises the remains of a multi-phase fort or defended settlement, likely to date to the later prehistoric period and visible as a series of turf banks and ditches with associated remains such as house platforms. It lies between 220m and 240m above sea level on a small hill overlooking the confluence of the Black Esk and the White Esk into the River Esk. The W half of the site comprises very well-preserved earthworks, while later ploughing has removed most of the visible remains in the E half. The area to be scheduled is irregular in plan, to include the remains described above and an area around within which evidence relating to the monument's construction, use and abandonment may survive. The scheduled area specifically excludes the above-ground elements of the sections of post-and-wire fences and the drystone dykes that cross the scheduled area, to allow for their maintenance. The monument, which lies in the Parish of Westerkirk and the County of Dumfries as shown in red on the Plan annexed and executed as relative hereto [redacted] is hereby included in the Schedule of Monuments appearing to the Scottish Ministers to be of national importance compiled and maintained by them under section 1(1) of the Ancient Monuments and Archaeological Areas Act 1979.

Subscribed by Malcolm Cooper, Chief Inspector with Historic Scotland, being an officer of the Scottish Ministers at Edinburgh on the 25 day of JUNE Two thousand and ten, before this witness Lorna Fairholm, of Longmore House, Salisbury Place, Edinburgh.
