

THE ANCIENT MONUMENTS AND ARCHAEOLOGICAL AREAS ACT 1979
ENTRY IN THE SCHEDULE OF MONUMENTS

655

The monument known as Gallaberry Hill, fort comprises a large oval fort measuring 160m NW-SE by 90m transversely within three concentric ramparts and ditches. Likely to be of Iron-age date, the fort is situated on the summit of Gallaberry Hill at 70m above sea level, in a natural defensive position overlooking Dryfe Water and the River Annan. The fort is defined by up to three concentric ramparts and ditches, and is preserved in mature woodland except for in the east and north-east where the monument survives as buried features in an arable field. The area to be scheduled is oval on plan to include the fort, its ditches, and an area around in which evidence relating to its construction and use may survive. The scheduled area is bisected by a road running NE-SW across the southern part of the fort. The scheduled area extends up to, but excludes, the road and its cutting. The above-ground elements of the fences and the top 30cm of the track running N-S are specifically excluded from the schedule, to allow for their maintenance. The monument, which lies in the Parish of Dryfesdale and the County of Dumfries as shown outlined in red on the Plan annexed and executed as relative hereto [REDACTED];
