

The monument known as East Lomond Hill, fort and cairn comprises the remains of a prehistoric fort and burial cairn on the summit of East Lomond Hill. The hill fort is likely to have been in use in the Iron Age (sometime between 500 BC and AD 600), while the burial cairn is earlier and dates probably from the Bronze Age. The remains of the cairn are visible on the summit as a low, circular turf-covered concentration of stones, measuring around 13m across. The remains of the fort extend over an area of some 2.3 hectares, comprising a summit enclosure and a complex series of defences that exploit the contours of the hill. The summit enclosure is pear-shaped and measures around 61m by 30m, with its long axis orientated NW-SE. It is defined by a low bank, presumably a collapsed rampart. The scheduled area is irregular on plan to include the remains described above and an area around them within which evidence relating to the monument's construction, use and abandonment is expected to survive. The scheduling specifically excludes the above-ground elements of a summit viewing plinth and the top 30cm of all modern paths to allow for their maintenance and repair. The monument, which lies in the Parish of Falkland and the County of Fife as shown in red on the Plan annexed and executed as relative hereto

 is hereby included in the Schedule of Monuments appearing to the Scottish Ministers to be of national importance compiled and maintained by them under section 1(1) of the Ancient Monuments and Archaeological Areas Act 1979.

This entry supersedes the Entry in the Schedule of Monuments for the monument known then as Fort, East Lomond as referred to in the Certificate of Service of Notice by the Commissioners of His Majesty's Works and Public Buildings in respect of the monument dated 15 June 1936 and recorded in the General Register of Sasines for the County of Fife on 20 July 1936.

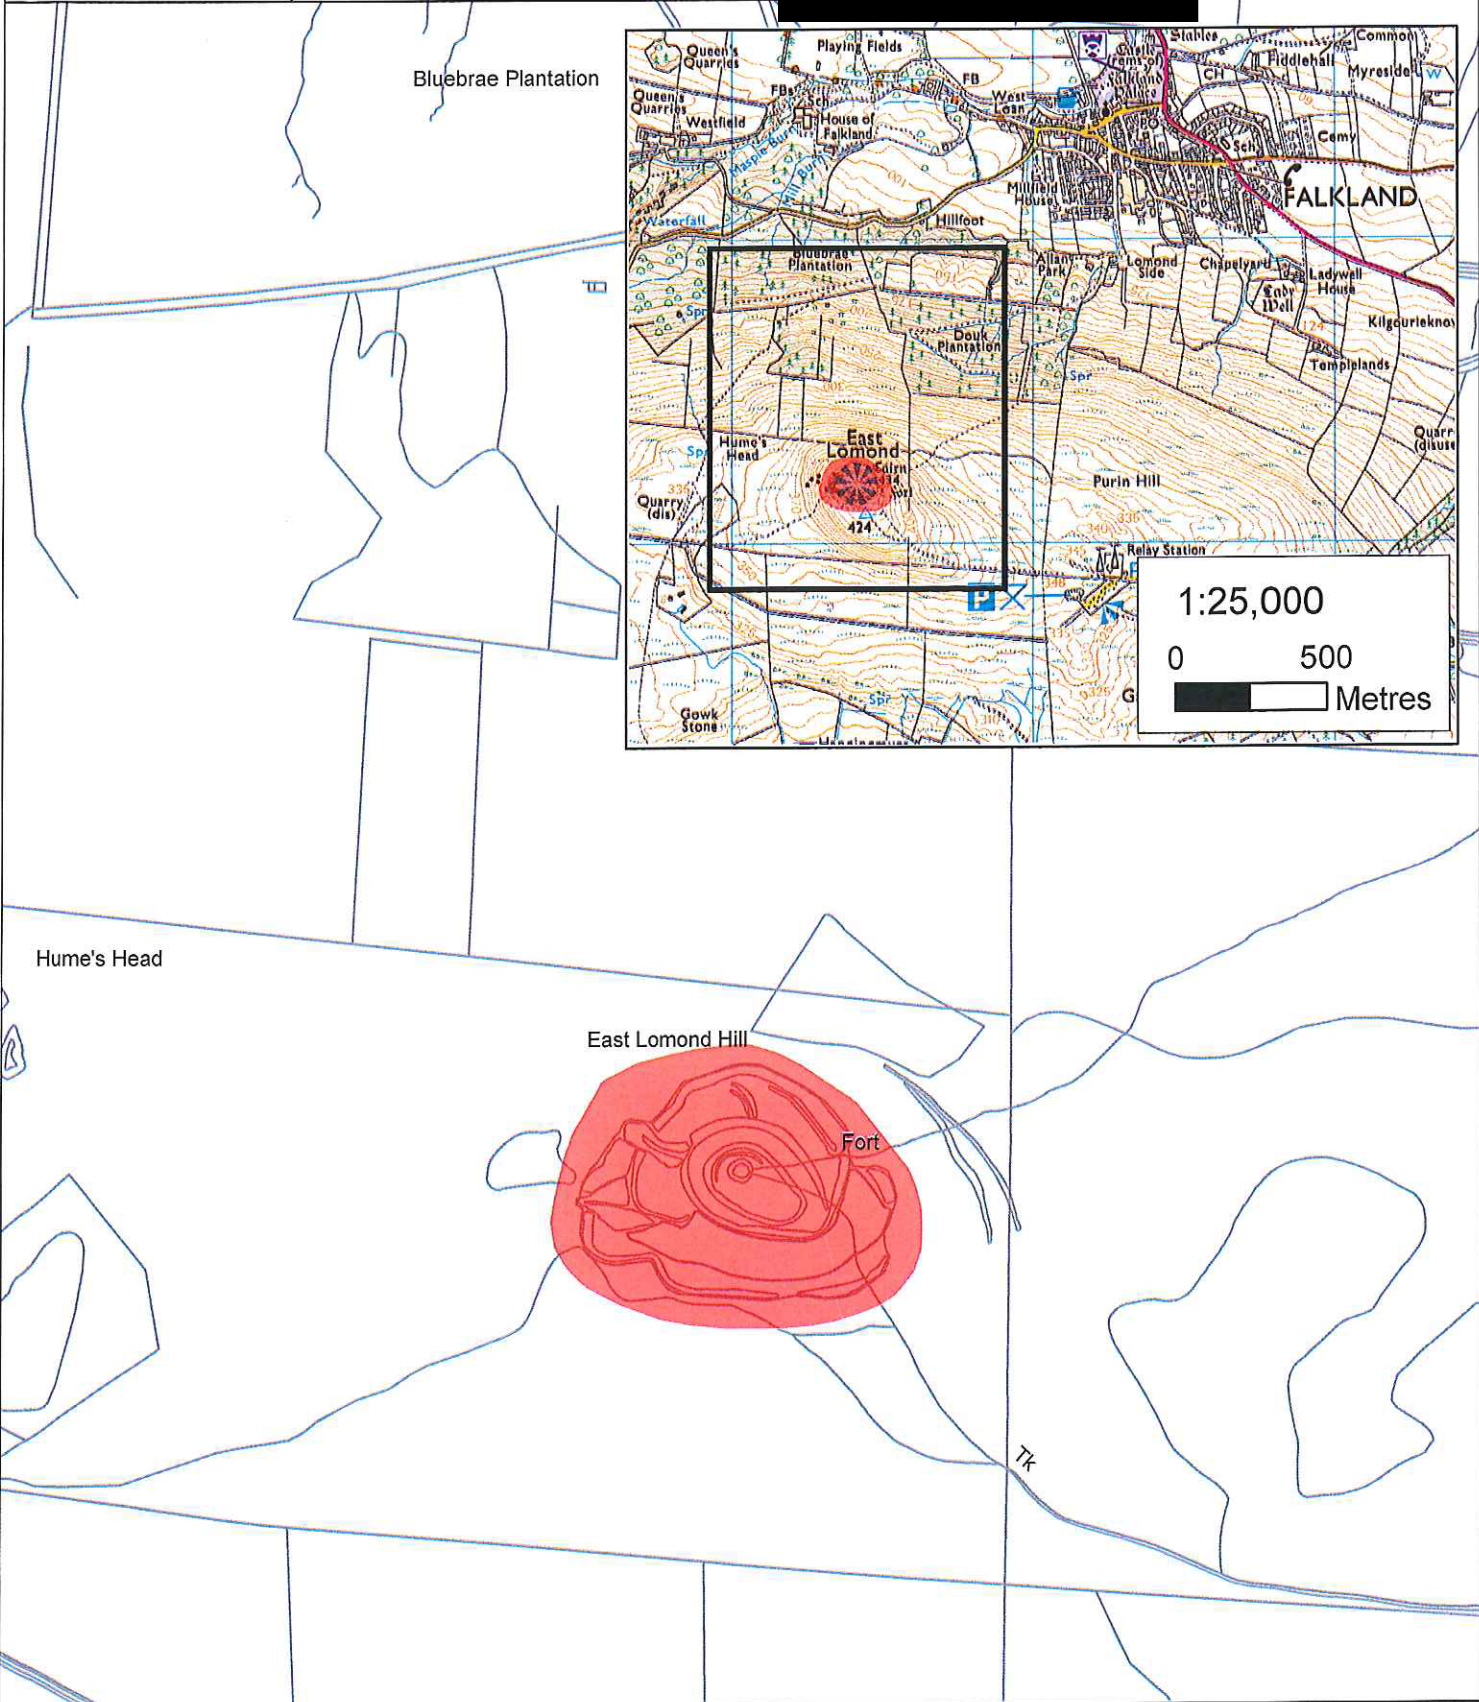

Subscribed by Olwyn A Owen, Head of Scheduling, Marine and Battlefields with Historic Scotland, being an officer of the Scottish Ministers at Edinburgh on the 16th day of January Two thousand and fourteen, before this witness Christine Kelly, of Longmore House, Salisbury Place, Edinburgh.
