THE ANCIENT MONUMENTS AND ARCHAEOLOGICAL AREAS ACT 1979 1347
ENTRY IN THE SCHEDULE OF MONUMENTS

The monument known as Cumbla Newgarth, mounds, 200m NNE of Quean comprises the buried remains of up to nine barrows dating probably to the Bronze Age (between 2000 and 800 BC). Four of the barrows are visible as slight rises in the field; the other barrows are likely to be preserved as buried remains. The visible mounds form a tight cluster of sub-circular, low earthen mounds and are spread by ploughing to around 14m in diameter. Overall, the barrow cemetery covers an area of some 1.3ha. The scheduled area is quadrilateral on plan, measuring 160m NW-SE by 85m N-S, to include the remains described above and an area around them within which evidence relating to the monument's construction, use and abandonment is expected to survive. The scheduled area excludes the post-and-wire fences which form the current field boundary. The monument, which lies in the Parish of Sandwick and the County of Orkney and Zetland as shown in red on the Plan annexed and executed as relative hereto [redacted], is hereby included in the Schedule of Monuments appearing to the Scottish Ministers to be of national importance compiled and maintained by them under section 1(1) of the Ancient Monuments and Archaeological Areas Act 1979.

This entry supersedes the Entry in the Schedule of Monuments for the monument known then as Mounds, 200 yards east of Cumbla, Newgarth as referred to in the Certificate of Service of Notice by the Minister of Works in respect of the monument dated 30 March 1962 and recorded in the General Register of Sasines for the County of Orkney and Zetland on 15 May 1962.

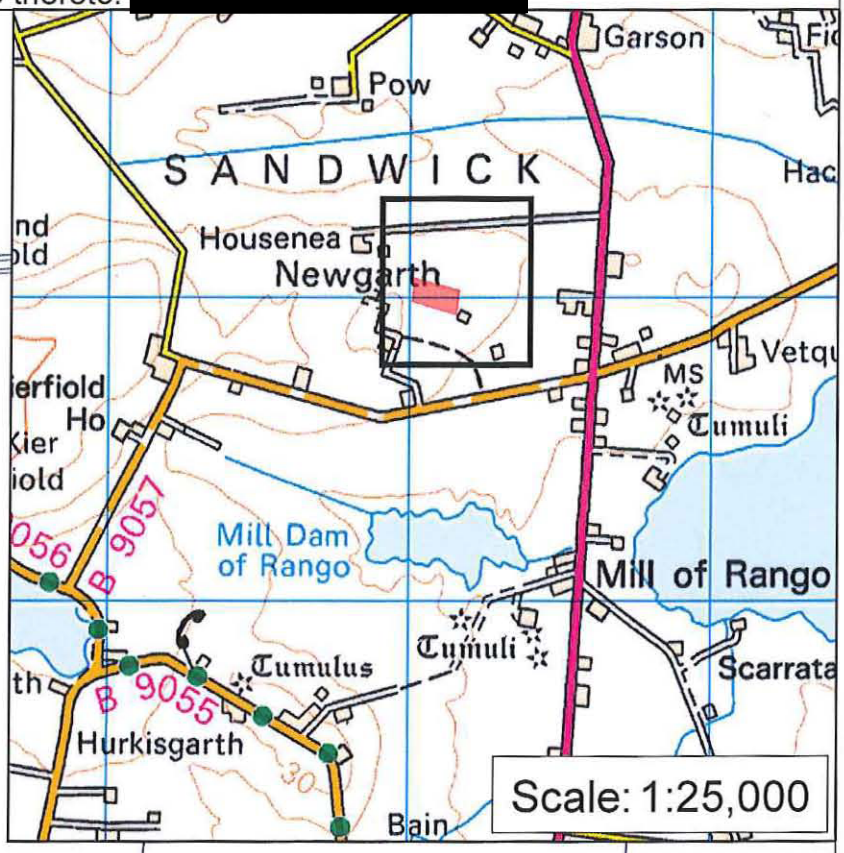

Subscribed by Olwyn A Owen, Head of Scheduling, Marine and Battlefields with Historic Scotland, being an officer of the Scottish Ministers at Edinburgh on the 28th day of August Two thousand and fourteen, before this witness Christine Kelly, of Longmore House, Salisbury Place, Edinburgh.
