THE ANCIENT MONUMENTS AND ARCHAEOLOGICAL AREAS ACT 1979 3826
ENTRY IN THE SCHEDULE OF MONUMENTS

The monument known as Cladh Uaine, chapel and burial ground 560m SE of Pennyfuir Cottage comprises the remains of a medieval chapel and burial ground. The chapel dates probably from some time between the 12th and 16th centuries, although an earlier origin is possible. Its visible remains comprise the grass-grown wall footings of a small rectangular building, measuring 8.2m E-W by 4.1m transversely. The wall footings are approximately 1m wide and stand up to 0.5m high. There are traces of an entrance-doorway towards the centre of the S wall. The Ordnance Survey first edition map shows the chapel located in the NW corner of an oval burial ground measuring 23m E-W by 18m transversely, although no above-ground elements of this enclosure are now visible. The monument lies at 115m above sea level, on a ridge of high ground that extends S from Tom Ard, some 2km from the coast. The area to be scheduled is circular on plan, 36m in diameter, centred on the SE corner of the chapel. The scheduling includes the remains described above and an area around them within which evidence relating to the monument's construction, use and abandonment may survive. The monument, which lies in the Parish of Kilmore and Kilbride and the County of Argyll as shown in red on the Plan annexed and executed as
