THE ANCIENT MONUMENTS AND ARCHAEOLOGICAL AREAS ACT 1979
ENTRY IN THE SCHEDULE OF MONUMENTS

The monument known as Little Rough Law, fort 700m ESE of The Yett comprises a fort of the Iron Age, some 2000 years old, situated on a rocky knoll on a spur of high ground. It measures c63m NW to SE by 50m transversely, within a stone faced rampart set on the edge of a terrace quarried into the hillside. The main entrance is in the SE, while a second entrance, in the NW, gives access to an annexe, occupying a lower terrace of the knoll and measuring 61m NW to SE by 64m transversely, within a wasted rubble rampart, which has an entrance at the NE. Slight traces of a ditch survive on the SW side of the main entrance to the fort, and there are surviving fragments of elaborations to the defences. The interior of the fort will contain the remains of domestic structures; the fort and the area around will contain traces of activities associated with the use of the monument. The area to be scheduled measures 200m NW to SE by 100m transversely. The monument, which lies in the Parish of Hownam and the County of Roxburgh as shown outlined in red on the Plan annexed and executed as relative hereto and [redacted] is hereby included in the Schedule of Monuments appearing to the Secretary of State for Scotland to be of national importance compiled and maintained by him under section 1(1) of the Ancient Monuments and Archaeological Areas Act 1979.

Given under the Seal of the Secretary of State for Scotland.
