#THE ANCIENT MONUMENTS AND ARCHAEOLOGICAL AREAS ACT 1979
ENTRY IN THE SCHEDULE OF MONUMENTS

The monument known as Eilean Dubh Dun Scor, dun, Loch Caravat comprises of an island dun and the causeways which link it to a nearby island and to the S and N shores of Loch Caravat. The dun is an oval enclosure formed by a 1m thick wall of drystone construction, now standing no more than 1.5m high, and generally reduced to less than 0.8m. The dun has three possible entrances: two close together at the W end and a third at the NE end. There are low foundations of indistinct plan within the wall of the dun, just inside each of the entrances. A partially submerged causeway links the island on which the dun stands to a larger island to the W, and this island in turn is linked by causeways both to the N and to the S shores of the loch. The N causeway has been kept in repair and stands above the water, the S causeway being almost totally submerged. The areas to be scheduled consist of the whole of the small island on which the dun stands together with a strip 10m wide centred on each of the three causeways. The monument, which lies in the Parish of North Uist and the County of Inverness as shown outlined in red on the Plan annexed and executed as relative hereto and which forms hereby included in the Schedule of Monuments appearing to the Secretary of State for Scotland to be of national importance compiled and maintained by him under section 1(1) of the Ancient Monuments and Archaeological Areas Act 1979.
