THE ANCIENT MONUMENTS AND ARCHAEOLOGICAL AREAS ACT 1979
ENTRY IN THE SCHEDULE OF MONUMENTS

The monument known as Creag na Caillich, stone axe working site comprises the remains of a stone quarrying and axe working site of the Neolithic period, over 3000 years old. Recent fieldwork recovered evidence for the quarrying of rock by use of fire setting and the rough preparation of the stone at the outcrop of rock, and for the secondary flaking of stone in the saddle below the outcrop. The axes made from the rock (group XXIV, a calc-silicate hornfels) are widely distributed on the East coast of Britain. The area to be scheduled measures 450m N-S by 450m E-W, to include the areas where activity has been proved and an area around where the traces of further axe working activity, and possibly of settlement remains associated with it, may survive. The monument, which lies in the Parish of Killin and the County of Perth as shown outlined in red on the Plan annexed and executed as relative hereto

[REDACTED] is hereby included in the Schedule of Monuments appearing to the Secretary of State for Scotland to be of national importance compiled and maintained by him under section 1(1) of the Ancient Monuments and Archaeological Areas Act 1979.
