THE ANCIENT MONUMENTS AND ARCHAEOLOGICAL AREAS ACT 1979
ENTRY IN THE SCHEDULE OF MONUMENTS

The monument known as Middleton Muir, settlements, field systems, cairns and deer dyke comprises the remains of settlements of circular houses of the Bronze Age, with the remains of field systems, some of which will be contemporary with the houses, and burial cairns, forming one of the most extensive assemblages of prehistoric remains in north-east Perthshire. There are the remains of at least 30 circular houses of a great variety of form, surviving as turf and heather-covered rings. Around and between these houses are field systems defined by low banks and indicated also by scatters of cairns of field clearance stone. Amongst these remains there are at least 5 cairns which can be identified as burial cairns; one is a particularly well preserved ring cairn, the others are more bowl-shaped, up to 10m across and 0.6m high. The irregular area to be scheduled measures a maximum of 2120m WNW to ESE, 2490m SW to NE and 1940m NW to SE, to include the remains of the settlements, the field systems, the burial cairns and the deer dyke, and areas around and between the visible features where further features associated with their use, at present not visible, will survive. The monument, which lies in the Parish of Kinloch; Blairgowrie and the County of Perth as shown outlined in red on the Plan annexed and executed as relative hereto and which forms part
