THE ANCIENT MONUMENTS AND ARCHAEOLOGICAL AREAS ACT 1979 5428
ENTRY IN THE SCHEDULE OF MONUMENTS

The monument known as Warlawbank, fort 140m NW of comprises the remains of a multivallate fort, surviving as low banks and ditches visible on the ground and from the air in cropmarks. The site is likely to date to the Iron Age or early-historic period (late 1st millennium BC to early 1st millennium AD). The fort is situated in a naturally defensive position on the summit of Horseley Hill. The oval fort is defined by the remains of two ramparts with a medial ditch, with slight remains of a third rampart visible on the NE arc of the fort. The ramparts are between 5m and 10m in width and enclose an area measuring around 115m E-W by around 70m transversely. There are two entrances to the fort, on the ESE and WSW respectively. A large cropmark ring ditch occupies the E end of the fort's interior, measuring around 65m E-W by around 55m transversely. The area to be scheduled is irregular on plan, to include the remains described above and an area around within which evidence relating to its construction and use may survive. The scheduling specifically excludes the above-ground elements of all post-and-wire fences and stone dykes to allow for their maintenance, along with the water tank located on the S edge of the fort. The monument, which lies in the Parish of Coldingham and the County of Berwick as shown in red on the Plan annexed and executed as relative hereto [redacted], is hereby included in the Schedule of Monuments appearing to the Scottish Ministers to be of national importance compiled and maintained by them under section 1(1) of the Ancient Monuments and Archaeological Areas Act 1979.

Subscribed by Malcolm Cooper, Chief Inspector with Historic Scotland, being an officer of the Scottish Ministers at Edinburgh on the 31 day of March Two thousand and nine, before this witness Luke Wormald, of Longmore House, Salisbury Place, Edinburgh.
