THE ANCIENT MONUMENTS AND ARCHAEOLOGICAL AREAS ACT 1979 5735
ENTRY IN THE SCHEDULE OF MONUMENTS

The monument known as Upper Keith, ring ditch 1000m NNW of comprises the remains of a prehistoric round barrow of a type that usually dates to the Bronze Age, between 2500 BC and 800 BC. This burial monument is visible as a ring ditch with a central pit in its interior, which probably represents a burial. These features are buried below the plough soil, but appear as cropmarks captured on oblique aerial photographs. The ditch is about 1.7m wide with a maximum external diameter of 10.3m. The central pit is sub-circular with a diameter of about 2m. Other cropmarks lie in the immediate vicinity, but their character is less clear. The barrow lies about 175m above sea level on ground that slopes gently N. The scheduled area is circular on plan, measures 40m in diameter, and is centred on the centre of the ring ditch. The scheduling includes the remains described above and an area around them within which evidence relating to the monument's construction, use and abandonment may survive. The monument, which lies in the Parish of Humbie and the County of East Lothian as shown in red on the Plan annexed and executed as relative hereto [redacted], is hereby included in the Schedule of Monuments appearing to the Scottish Ministers to be of national importance compiled and maintained by them under section 1(1) of the Ancient Monuments and Archaeological Areas Act 1979.

This entry supersedes the entry in the Schedule of Monuments for the monument known then as Costerton, ring ditches and cropmarks 900m ESE of as referred to in the Entry in the Schedule of Monuments by the Secretary of State for Scotland in respect of the monument dated 7 September 1993 and recorded in the General Register of Sasines for the County of East Lothian on 26 October 1993.

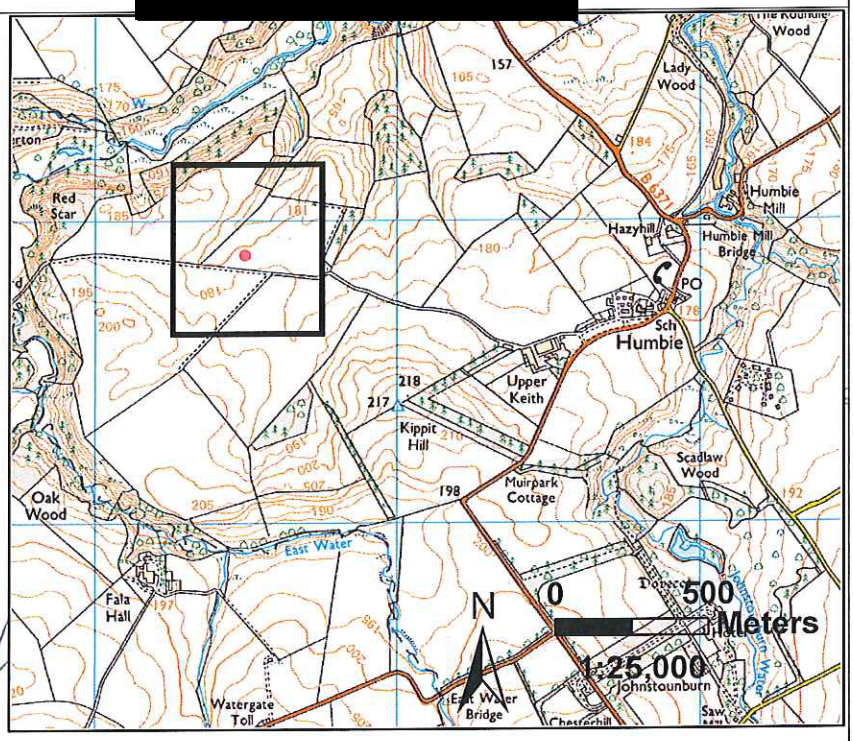

Subscribed by Olwyn A Owen, Head of Scheduling, Marine and Battlefields with Historic Scotland, being an officer of the Scottish Ministers at Edinburgh on the 9th day of September Two thousand and thirteen, before this witness Christine Kelly, of Longmore House, Salisbury Place, Edinburgh.
