THE ANCIENT MONUMENTS AND ARCHAEOLOGICAL AREAS ACT 1979
ENTRY IN THE SCHEDULE OF MONUMENTS

The monument known as Moncreiffe House, chapel comprises a much remodelled and extended chapel of medieval date, visible as a largely complete upstanding structure. The chapel is situated upon the platform of an area of mounded earth at about 30m OD and lies in wooded parkland about 110m ESE of Moncreiffe House. It was originally a pendicle within the parish of Dunbarny, and by 1357 is said to have become the principal burial place of the Moncreiffe family, a function it still serves despite having been abandoned for worship. The building comprises the roofless shell of the chapel itself, with a later laird's aisle on its N side. A mid 19th century T-shaped burial enclosure has been added to the chapel's eastern end, in the form of northern and southern transeptal projections, with a small five-sided axial apse on the E side. Most of the stones for this addition were taken from the ruins of the Bridge of Earn. The medieval part of the chapel is a simple rectangular structure. Its walls are of mortared rubble with ashlar quoins and are largely in tact. They display several phases of modification and incorporate numerous blocks of re-used masonry. The area to be scheduled comprises the remains described and an area around them within which related material may be expected to be found. It is rectangular, measuring 27m N-S by 32m E-W. The 19th century burial enclosure is excluded from the scheduling. The monument, which lies in the Parish of Dunbarney and the County of Perth as shown outlined in red on the Plan annexed and [redacted] is hereby included in the Schedule of Monuments appearing to the Scottish Ministers to be of national importance compiled and maintained by them under section 1(1) of the Ancient Monuments and Archaeological Areas Act 1979.

Subscribed by Frank James Lawrie, Director of Heritage Policy with Historic Scotland, being an officer of the Scottish Ministers at Edinburgh on the 11th day of January Two thousand and two, before this witness Lesley Macdonald, of Longmore House, Salisbury Place, Edinburgh.
