THE ANCIENT MONUMENTS AND ARCHAEOLOGICAL AREAS ACT 1979
ENTRY IN THE SCHEDULE OF MONUMENTS

The monument known as Loch Coille-Bharr, mill and lade, Knapdale comprises a mill building and lade, sited towards the southern end of Loch Coille-Bharr in Knapdale. The mill building survives to two storeys and is divided into two unequal sections. Access to the ground floor is by a doorway on the NW side, and access to the upper floor is via an external stair to a doorway in the SW gable end. An archway in the NE gable end is thought to indicate the position of the wheel, although no machinery now survives. Traces of wall stubs at the NE end of the building indicate that it was originally longer, but has been altered or reduced in length at some point. The rock-cut lade runs, down from Loch Coille-Bjarr, which is at a higher level than the mill building. The lade was probably brought to the wheel itself. The building stands beside a forestry track which utilises an older road, probably originally serving the mill and the settlement at Kilmory Oib, to the north. The area to be scheduled is an irregular L-shape, with the longer arm measuring c.10m in width across the lade, and with the shorter arm measuring c.32m NE-SW by a maximum of 17m transversely, to include the mill, the lade and an area around in which remains relating to their construction and use may survive. The monument, which lies in the Parish of North Knapdale and the County of Argyll as shown outlined in red on the Plan annexed and executed as relative hereto [redacted] is hereby included in the Schedule of Monuments appearing to the Scottish Ministers to be of national importance compiled and maintained by them under section 1(1) of the Ancient Monuments and Archaeological Areas Act 1979.

Subscribed by Frank James Lawrie, Director of Heritage Policy with Historic Scotland, being an officer of the Scottish Ministers at Edinburgh on the 12th day of December Two thousand and one, before this witness Lesley Macdonald, of Longmore House, Salisbury Place, Edinburgh.
