

The monument known as Rattray Line, pill box 855m SE of Rattray House, comprises the remains of a well-preserved pill box situated behind the dune system stretching from the Rattray Head lighthouse shore station to the south. The pill box is part of a larger defensive anti-tank stop line of 14 intervisible pill boxes and associated defences erected during World War II to protect against landings on the beach south of Rattray Head. The area to be scheduled is limited to the pill box and a small zone around the outer surface of the walls. It is circular with a diameter of 9m. The monument, which lies in the Parish of St Fergus and the County of Aberdeen as shown outlined in red on the Plan annexed and executed as relative hereto hereby included in the Schedule of Monuments appearing to the Scottish Ministers to be of national importance compiled and maintained by them under section 1(1) of the Ancient Monuments and Archaeological Areas Act 1979.

Subscribed by Malcolm Cooper, Chief Inspector with Historic Scotland, being an officer of the Scottish Ministers at Edinburgh on the 31 day of Jan
Two thousand and six, before this witness Victoria Ball, of Longmore House, Salisbury Place, Edinburgh.
