THE ANCIENT MONUMENTS AND ARCHAEOLOGICAL AREAS ACT 1979 11832
ENTRY IN THE SCHEDULE OF MONUMENTS

The monument known as Burnside, bridge 300m W of, comprises a military-road bridge, surviving as upstanding structural remains, which once spanned Tomlachlan Burn to the W of Burnside. The bridge, a single span constructed in stone, is now disused. It is isolated in a pasture field, the river having changed its course and the modern road passing close by to the N, on a slightly modified route to the original path of Wade's road. The bridge measures 25m in length, surviving to a height of 4.6m. The area to be scheduled is irregular in plan, to include the bridge and an area around in which evidence for its construction and use may survive. The area is bounded on the S by a modern fence, and on the W by the current path of Tomlachlan Burn. The section of modern bridge which abuts the SW edge of the bridge, and the modern fenceline are specifically excluded from scheduling, to allow for maintenance. The monument, which lies in the Parish of Ardclach and the County of Nairn as shown outlined in red on the Plan annexed and executed as relative hereto [redacted] hereby included in the Schedule of Monuments appearing to the Scottish Ministers to be of national importance compiled and maintained by them under section 1(1) of the Ancient Monuments and Archaeological Areas Act 1979.

Subscribed by Malcolm Cooper, Chief Inspector with Historic Scotland, being an officer of the Scottish Ministers at Edinburgh on the 20 day of March Two thousand and seven, before this witness Victoria Ball, of Longmore House, Salisbury Place, Edinburgh.
