THE ANCIENT MONUMENTS AND ARCHAEOLOGICAL AREAS ACT 1979 13317
ENTRY IN THE SCHEDULE OF MONUMENTS

The monument known as Cockburnspath Tower, tower & ancillary buildings 390m N of Tower Farm comprises the remains of Cockburnspath Tower, built probably in the 15th century and now visible as a ruinous tower standing two storeys high, with a basement level and ancillary range (or barmkin). The tower lies on the N side of Tower Dean, one of several deep ravines that cut E-W across north-eastern Berwickshire. The site lies about 100m above sea level. It is overlooked from the W and N by higher ground, but occupies a commanding position offering good views to the S over the Tower Dean. The scheduled area is irregular on plan, to include the remains of the castle and ancillary range and an area around them in which evidence for the tower's construction, use and abandonment is expected to survive. The scheduling specifically excludes the above-ground elements of modern post-and-wire fences and a stile and gate. The monument, which lies in the Parish of Cockburnspath and the County of Berwick as shown in red on the Plan annexed and executed as relative hereto [redacted], is hereby included in the Schedule of Monuments appearing to the Scottish Ministers to be of national importance compiled and maintained by them under section 1(1) of the Ancient Monuments and Archaeological Areas Act 1979.

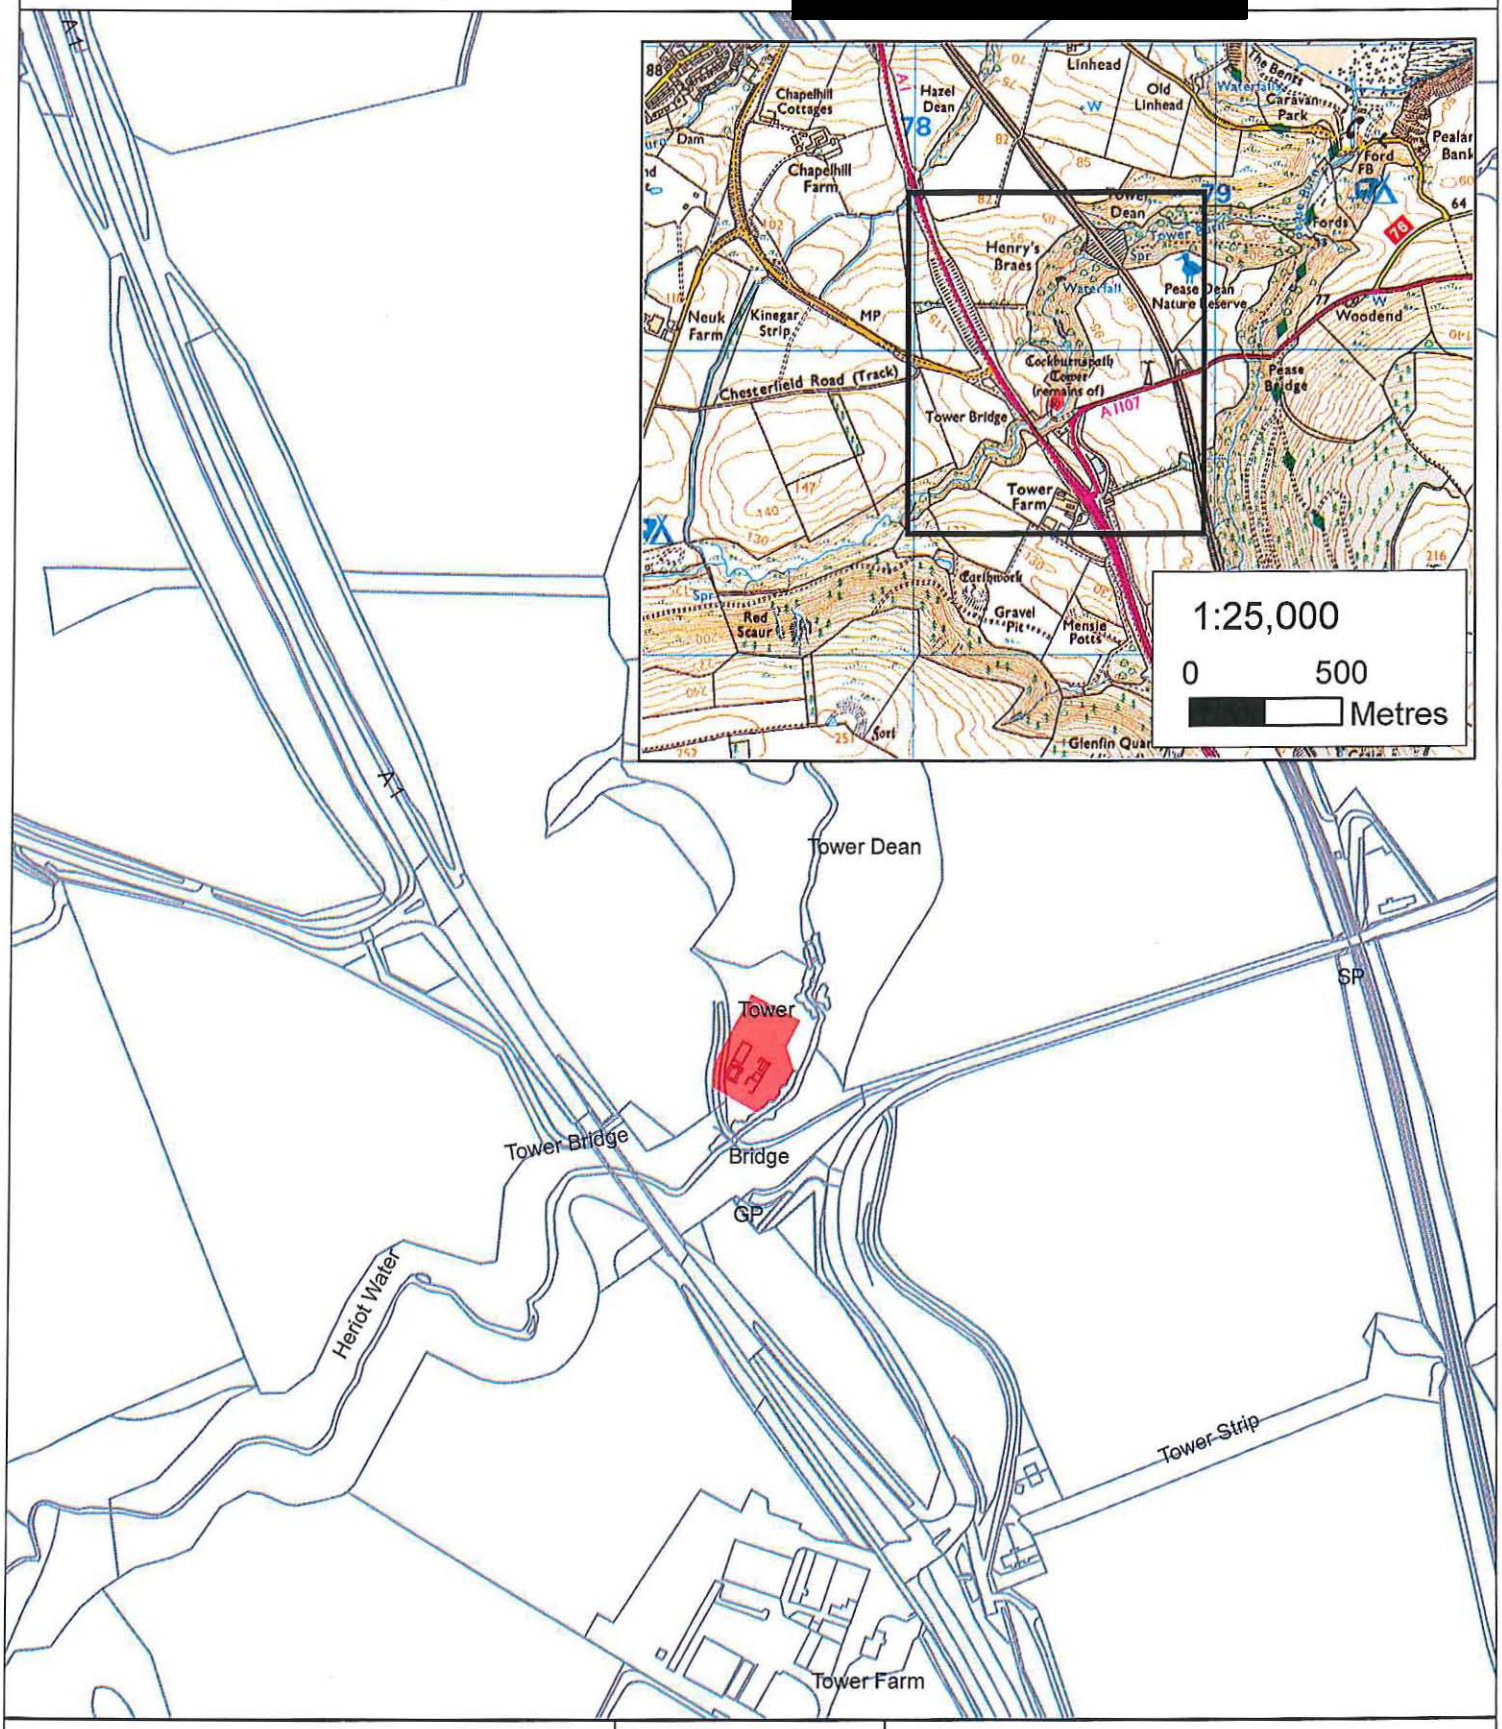

Subscribed by Barbara Cummins, Director of Heritage Management with Historic Scotland, being an officer of the Scottish Ministers at Edinburgh on the 5th day of December Two thousand and thirteen, before this witness Victoria Murray, of Longmore House, Salisbury Place, Edinburgh.
