The monument known as Auskerry, burnt mound 260m SW of Loch of Dinnapow comprises the remains of a well-preserved burnt mound dating probably to the Bronze Age (some time between 2000 and 800 BC). It is visible as a roughly crescent-shaped grass-covered mound, which measures approximately 24m E-W by 25.6m N-S and stands up to 1.5m high. The mound is situated inland on the island of Auskerry, at around 10m above sea level, and is surrounded by low-lying boggy ground. The scheduled area is irregular on plan. It includes the remains described above and an area around them within which evidence relating to the monument's construction, use and abandonment is expected to survive. The monument, which lies in the Parish of Stronsay and the County of Orkney and Zetland as shown in red on the Plan annexed and executed as relative hereto [redacted], is hereby included in the Schedule of Monuments appearing to the Scottish Ministers to be of national importance compiled and maintained by them under section 1(1) of the Ancient Monuments and Archaeological Areas Act 1979.
