THE ANCIENT MONUMENTS AND ARCHAEOLOGICAL AREAS ACT 1979 13497
ENTRY IN THE SCHEDULE OF MONUMENTS

The monument known as Scad Head, coast artillery battery, camp & railway, Hoy comprises the remains of a coastal artillery battery and associated accommodation camp and railway, established in 1940 and used during the Second World War. It is visible as the remains of a series of concrete structures, hut bases, communication trenches, temporary emplacements and a railway. It forms part of a network of coastal batteries built to defend the key strategic British naval anchorage of Scapa Flow. Located on the headland at Scad Head on the E coast of Hoy, and overlooking the bay at Chalmers' Hope to the N and Bring Deeps to the E, this battery was one of five covering the western channels into the Flow. The scheduled area is irregular on plan to include the remains described above and an area around them within which evidence relating to the monument's construction and use is expected to survive. The monument, which lies in the Parishes of Walls and Flotta and Hoy and Graemsay and the County of Orkney and Zetland as shown in red on the Plan annexed and executed as relative hereto [redacted], is hereby included in the Schedule of Monuments appearing to the Scottish Ministers to be of national importance compiled and maintained by them under section 1(1) of the Ancient Monuments and Archaeological Areas Act 1979.

Subscribed by Barbara Cummins, Director of Heritage Management with Historic Scotland, being an officer of the Scottish Ministers at Edinburgh on the 10th day of October Two thousand and fourteen, before this witness Victoria Murray, of Longmore House, Salisbury Place, Edinburgh.
