The Ancient Monuments and Archaeological Areas Act 1979

Amended entry in the schedule of monuments

Historic Environment Scotland in exercise of the powers conferred on it by section 1(1) of the Ancient Monuments and Archaeological Areas Act 1979 hereby amends the entry in the statutory schedule of monuments as set out below.

The monument known as Ardtaraig, chapel and enclosure 155m W of comprises the remains of a chapel within a sub-rectangular enclosure. The chapel is visible as a rectangular stone-walled structure and the enclosure is defined by a low earth and stone grass-covered bank. A cross-incised stone is located at the entrance to the enclosure through the southwest bank. The monument is likely to date to the Early Christian period (around 550 to 900 AD) and is located on a level terrace at about 10m above sea level on the eastern bank of Loch Striven.

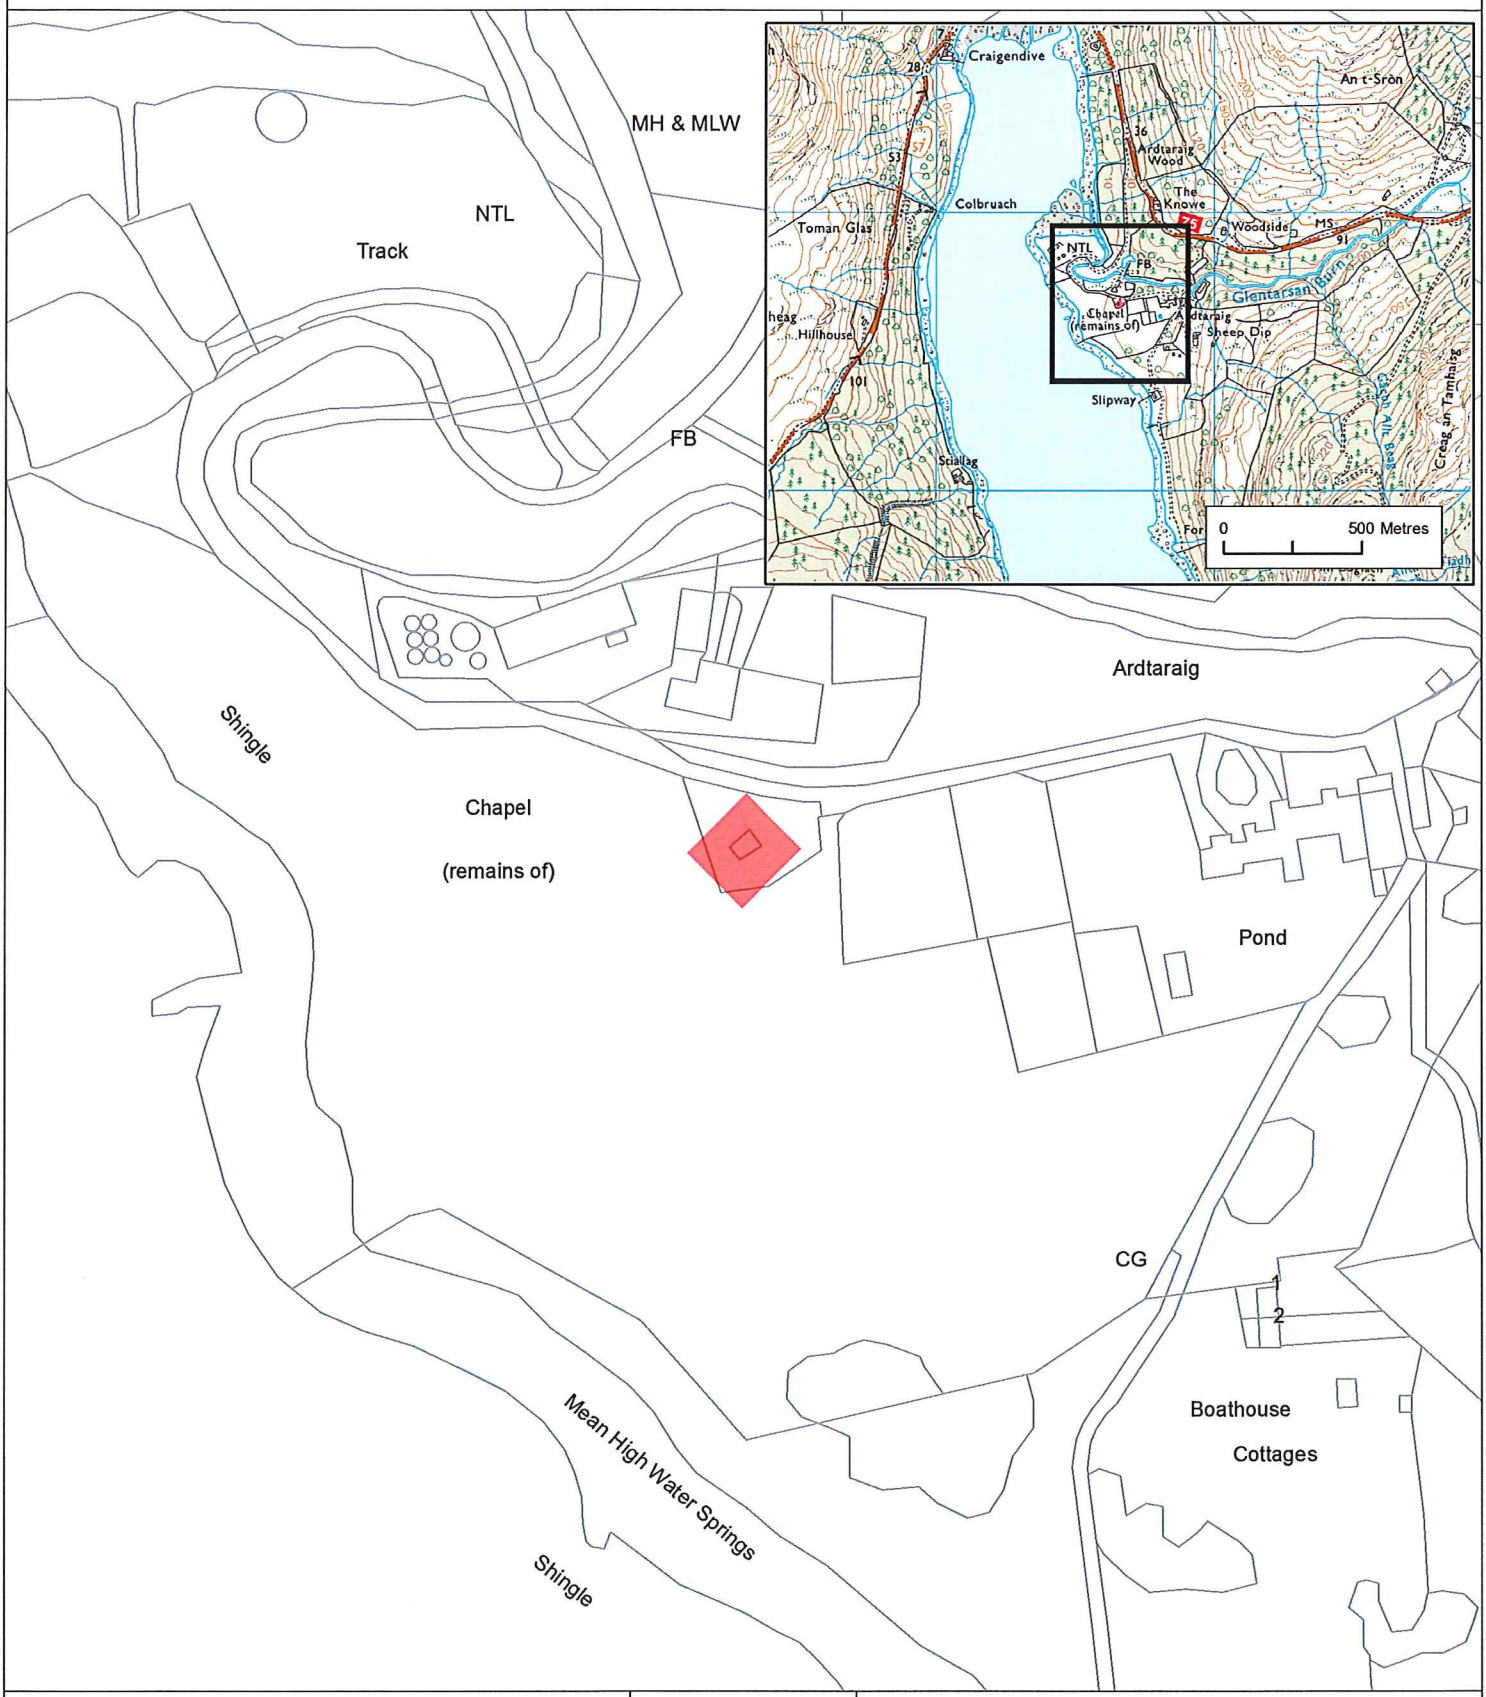

The scheduled area is sub-rectangular on plan and includes the area described above and area around it in which evidence for the monument's construction, use and abandonment is expected to survive. The scheduling excludes the element of the modern fence.

The monument, which lies in the Parish of Inverchaolain and the County of Argyll as shown in red on the plan annexed and executed as relative hereto.

This entry supersedes the Entry in the Schedule of Monuments for the monument known then as Chapel situated West of Ardtarig at Glentarsan as referred to in the Certificate of Service of Notice by the Secretary of State for Scotland in respect of the monument dated 5 December 1973 and recorded in the General Register of Sasines for the County of Argyll on 21 May 1974.
